

My son has allergies to nuts and peanuts along with millions of other kids, and I cannot understand why airlines still serve snacks with nuts and peanuts. Is it worth the risk of someone's life? It would be so easy for all airlines to eliminate nuts and peanuts. During a flight you cannot get emergency medical care, so it only makes sense to ban all nuts & peanuts for the safety of those that are severely allergic. Even if it can save 1 life, it is worth it.

I hope you will implement this ban of peanuts and nuts on all flights, as it is a risk that can put children's lives in jeopardy.

Sincerely,

Betty Wong
