

I have a severe nut allergy to all forms of nuts liquid, solid, pastes, creme, nougat etc. The list is long when it comes to nuts.

It would be in everyone best interest if they would not put them in any mode of transportation because for me and other people who can go into allergy shock with what ever there allergic to, it would be hard for the type of transportation to stop and get medical attention to that passenger,even if the passenger has an epi pen you still have to go seek medical help.

Thanks for considering they way allergy sufferers can travel more freely.
