

We are a family with severe nut allergies and young children.

A recommendation from our perspective would be to have a ban on all nut products coming on to or being sold/offered on airplanes or other modes of travel where easily accessible acute emergency care (in the case of anaphylactic shock) is less likely to be available.

Kind regards,
The Hobsons